From the London Times, Oct. 25. Threatened Difficulty between Great Britain and the United States.

The English government is omitting no opportunity of reinforcing the West India squadron, and thus interposing a powerful fleet between this country and North American continent. This proceeding will, we doubt not, call forth from a large portion of cal capital is to be manufactured by making her the biect of invective and depreciation. We shall be ald, no doubt, of the fiendish hatred of England to Republican America, and of the insolent menace behind which she veils her insidious and treacherous Without the slightest wish to reflect in any way on the press which allows itself to be made the vehicle of such statements, or upon the constituencies whose votes are found to be influenced by such numnies, we wish to point out to the good sense moderation of the American people the causes which have led us, even in time of war, to increase our squadron in their seas, and may possibly lead us still further in a direction, the first steps toward to the work, are cordially invited. which we are now most unwillingly taking. We entreat, then, the American public to believe, notwithstanding the assertions to the contrary with which they are so assiduously plied, that there is no party or body of men in this country that regards them with any other feeling than that of the utmost good will, or would wish for them any other fate than the enjoyment of the utmost public freedom which is consistent with the utmost private liberty and security. We have neither the wish nor the right to intrude our opinion on that form of government which has been established in the United States : but we have, and we claim the right, to take every reasonable precaution against that spirit of unbridled license which the present government of the United States seems inclined to tolerate. At this Marshals moment North America is in profound peace with the whole world; yet it is not the less true that in her ports are fitting out at this moment piratical fillianstering expeditions, destined to carry war and bloodshed into the dominions of an unoffending neighbor. These expeditions do not receive the sanction of the American government, are not equipned by its funds, will not be conducted by its officers : nt their preparation is nevertheless well known to the President and his administration, and receives no mack from that quarter. This toleration, we are willing to suppose, proceeds from weakness merely, and would be exchanged for vigorous action, only that the power to act is utterly wanting.

The American people are so free that they will not and though laudably eager for the preservation of their own dignity and the assertion of their own rights, cannot bring themselves to tolerate an Execmove sufficiently strong to compel respect for the lights of neutral nations. It is because we see n hope of finding in the United States a governmen apable of preventing its citizens from waging pr vate war on their own account against the best friend and truest allies of the great republic that we ar must unwillingly compelled, even in the midst of th ean struggle in which we are engaged, ume a defensive attitude, in order to trample ou he first sparks of this fire, and prevent a conflagra in which, if once allowed to spread, may cause incalculable misery to the human race. It is the misfortune of the American republic that she contains within her borders so many desperate and lawless ossess an organization sufficiently powerful to crush saries of insurrection and plunder have set their feet within Her Majesty's dominions, and encountered there the resistance which is sure to overwhelm their wild and desperate schemes. We cannot wait till we are placed in the terrible dilemma of either sparing men to whom elemency is cruelty to the human race a which they are the enemies, or of inflicting a just min-hment, which may be the means of inflaming gainst us the passions of the American people and ending to a disastrous and fratricidal war. We will if it be possible, prevent the crime that otherwise i would be our duty most severely to punish, and this we do in the name and in the hope of peace. W cannot believe that those who are now engaged in enbolling unhappy men for these desperate and crimiand enterprises really contemplate the success of a desent upon Ireland, for instance, as probable, or ever and the All they can hope is that the miserable the sure to attend such wretched adventurers may the means of inflaming the public mind agains ingland, and stirring up the passions of the people insummation it is the duty of the American Government, if it can, to prevent-and, as it cannot, of the lovernment against which such attempts are aimed, Mexico. y all means to avert. How strange that, under such circumstances, we should be driven to arms merely because it is the will of a portion of the overeign people to make war upon us, unsupported and unapproved; but also neither prevented nor arrested by the Government! We desire above all migs a continuance of peace; but if it be the deermination of any large portion of the people of the States to force war upon us, we shall know to meet it and repel it, without relaxing for an astant our gripe on the throat of the reeling and Henny giant of the North. but is it for the credit of those free institutions so
